ABSTRACT

Described herein is a technology for facilitating watermarking of digital goods. The technology, described herein, performs watermark embedding and the detection of embedded watermarks based upon rational statistics of multiple regions of a digital good